37.9 THE APPRAISAL INTERVIEW

37.9.1 BACKGROUND

The appraisal interview is the mechanism for reviewing the effectiveness of a member of staff current performance. It should centre on job performance and should seek to reconcile corporate goals with individual objectives and personal development. It should not contain any surprises, particularly about possible shortcomings, which ought to have been dealt with as they occur. The process should be discussion orientated with a problem-solving approach. This involves a combination of self and joint assessment. Self-assessment is an important feature of appraisal and each member of staff is responsible for understanding accepting and taking ownership of his or her own performance and development. How a member of staff achieves the objectives set should be proposed by that member of staff and not imposed by an appraiser.

38.9.2 FREQUENCY

The formal appraisal interview will take place annually. In addition to the formal discussion, regular feedback through ongoing dialogue and review should take place to ensure that progress is being made. Apart from the annual appraisal the staff is required to submit monthly progress sheets to the concerned superior / HoD and make quarterly presentations before the head of the Institution.

37.9.3 APPRAISERS

The appraiser should be an experienced and responsible member of staff, usually the immediate superior (HoD who has knowledge of the appraisee's work. (in cases where the appraiser finds difficulty with the arrangements then a request may be made to the Head of the Institution or Director – Human Resources for a different appraiser to be appointed) As a general guide, appraisers will not be asked to appraise more than eight to ten staff in order to ensure that appraisals are conducted fairly, regularly and with an element of commitment and goodwill.

37.9.4 PRE-APPRAISAL PLANNING -

- New staff will be provided with a copy of the Performance Appraisal Handbook. The Appraisal form /s and Check list for Appraisers and Checklist for Appraisees will be available from Human Resources office.
- Both appraiser and appraisee should prepare thoroughly for the interview using the checklist for Appraisers or checklist for Appraisees, as appropriate, as a guide. Both parties should have a copy of the Appraisal Form /s to guide their thoughts, but this should not be used to prejudge the outcome of any discussion. The appraisee's job description outlining duties responsibilities provides a useful focal point for the identification of objectives.
- The interview date and time will be agreed between the appraiser and appraisee at least one week in advance of the appraisal. Enough time should be set aside for the interview to allow for full discussion. The interview should be conducted in private with no distractions for interruptions, preferably on neutral territory.

37.9.5 THE INTERVIEW

- The essence of the appraisal process is performance and career management and should involve giving and receiving feedback, therefore only the appraiser and designated appraiser should be involved in the appraisal interview; third parties would not normally be present.

- The interview should begin with the appraisee's thoughts on each point, discussion of the appraiser's views and finally reaching agreement on outcomes.
- The appraisal process looks firstly at job role, personal skills and achievements of the appraisee, then reviews the previous 12 months in terms of whether agreed work objectives have been met and what staff and professional development has been provided. It then focuses on the forthcoming year in terms of work objectives and identified staff and professional development needs.
- Staff appraisal will only work successfully if there is a clear indication of individual objectives and standards. Each member of staff needs to know what is expected of them if they are to perform well. Work objectives are statements, which set the priorities of a job and indicate specific tasks expected to be performed within the forthcoming year. Standards (performance measures) are then applied to determine the required level of achievement. The appraisee will need to decide how these will be achieved.
- Staff and professional development needs, required to meet the objectives are identified and agreed. This needs to be done carefully and the appraiser will need to ensure that the appraisee's development aims are not in conflict with those of the Faculty/Department. It should then be agreed, where possible, how and when the development needs are going to be met. It may be necessary to seek advice from the Human Resources office.
- The Appraisal Forms should be completed as a written record of the discussion and agreed action.
- It is useful to set the date and time of a follow-up meeting; Staff and professional development is interpreted as the maintenance, improvement or development of knowledge, skills or behaviour relating to the requirements of the job (i.e. professional, development) or the individual (i.e. personal) development).

POST-INTERVIEW

- The appraisal form should be completed by the appraiser as a written record of the discussion and agreed actions and then signed by the appraiser and the appraisee as a true record. The appraisee may ask the appraiser for changes or clarification prior to signing.
- A copy of the form should be retained by both parties for future reference.
- A third signed copy together with the appraisee's current job description should be sent to the Human Resources Department which will need an overview of the process. The outcome of the appraisal should be used to inform the Faculty / Department planning process.
- If the appraiser is dissatisfied with the outcome of the interview, he or she has the right to refer the matter to the Director-Human Resources and have a personal interview who will mediate and try to resolve any differences. If still not resolved, then the appraiser will have recourse to the further stages of the Grievance Procedures.
